JAPAN TO SEND EMISSARY TO U. S. FOR CONFERENCE

Central Europe's Intrigue Jeopardizes Roosevelt's Plans

JEALOUSY IS BLAMED

Little Entente Angered Because Italy is Asked to Send Representative

(By International News Service) TOKYO, Apr. 11.—The Japanese cabinet today accepted President Roosevelt's invitation to send an emissary to Washington for discussion preliminary to the world economic conference.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Apr. 11.—Central Europe's intrigue, the cause of most of the Old World troubles, today jeopardized President Roosevelt's plans for international co-operation in the World Economic Conference.

Jealousy and suspicion which exists between Italy and Central European Little Entente is responsible.

Peeved because Italy has been invited to send a high government official here to confer with President Roosevelt, while they have been left out, members of the Little Entente have served warning the economic conference cannot succeed without their co-operation. Furthermore, they claim the support of Poland and Belgium, neither of which has been invited.

Diplomatic representatives of the Little Entente here say their governments would have remained impassive had the invitation been confined to France and Great Britain, but they see no reason why Italy should have been invited while Belgium and themselves were ignored.

"Belgium has more right from an economic viewpoint to be here than Italy," one Central European envoy said. "Italy had no right to be invited in any case; it should have been confined to France and Great Britain."

Battle Over Five-Day Week Approaches Struggle In The Legislature

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Apr. 11.—(INS)—
The battle over the five-day week, six-hour day was fast developing into a legislative struggle of titanic proportions today as Congress was bombarded with letters and telegrams for and against the legislation.

Manufacturers from every section of the country were pouring in protests to House members, while labor organizations were demanding approval of the measure.

The passage of the Black bill by the Senate came as a shock to many opo-nents of the legislation, who refused to take the legislative battle seriously.
With only the administration restraining the House from immediate action, the situation has assured a totally different aspect.

The House labor committee, confident the administration will approve the measure, today called Secretary of Labor Perkins into a secret session to discuss modification of the bill.

Miss Perkins, with Secretary of Commerce Roper, was asked by President Roosevelt to look into the legislation while it was being held up by Democratic leaders in the House.

One member of the House, who represents a fairly large industrial district, said he had received 150 telegrams and letters of protest. Another said he had received over 200.

Passover Being Observed; Started Last Evening

Passover (Pesach) is the festival observed by the Jew in the early spring in commemoration of the exodus from Egypt. It began last evening and is observed for eight days by Orthodox Jews, and for seven days by Reform Jews. In ancient Jewish life, it was the first of the three Pilgrim festivals upon which every male Jew was required to present himself in person at the central sanctuary in Jerusalem.

Although the Passover has certain features in common with the universal significance which gives it lasting vitality, it is the great Independence Day of the Jew, the first event in his national history, an event which became fundamental in all his thinking, as evidenced by the frequent reference to the great deliverance from Egypt.

Services are held in the synagogues and sermons are preached in keeping with the thoughts of the festival.

AKRON INQUIRY CENTERS ON WILEY'S TESTIMONY

Lt. Commander Brings Out Five Main Points Regarding Disaster

PRAISE FOR McCORD

By James L. Kilgallen
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LAKEHURST, N. J., Apr. 11.—(INS)— Inquiry by a naval board into the disaster which befell the dirigible Akron with a loss of 73 lives centered again today on the story of an eyewitness, Lieut. Commander Herbert V.
Wiley, one of the three survivors, who was scheduled to resume the witness stand for further interrogation.

Highlights of the testimony of Wiley, the only witness so far, were:

1. That an order was misunderstood by the helmsman when the Akron was trying to dodge the thunderstorm which had sprung up the night of April 3.

Wiley said Commander Frank C.
McCord, the Akron's master, told him he ordered a 15-degree change in course to the left but that the helmsman misunderstood and swung left 50 degrees. This occurred two hours after the ship left Lakehurst. The takeoff was about 7:45 p. m.

2. That an inexperienced man was at one of the elevator controls.
It was from the elevator controls that the ship's attitude was determined when she was battling the elements prior to her sudden crash into the sea off Barnegat, N. J., early last Tuesday morning.

3. That the Akron took off from Lakehurst when conditions were anything but favorable.

The weather map disclosed a low pressure area over Michigan and a windstrip extending south to Cincinnati. This area was moving northeast.
Unsettled conditions prevailed from Sandy Hook to Nantucket, where poor visibility was expected. The temperature had dropped twenty degrees from two o'clock to 5:45 p. m., and Wiley therefore ordered 17,300 pounds of additional water ballast placed aboard the ship before it took off.

4. That late that night when lightning was cracking he would have taken a different course than Commander McCord decided upon.

Wiley said he would have shifted to a westerly course, toward land, rather than easterly toward sea as decided upon by the master. It was purely a matter of opinion, he explained, and the commander had not asked his opinion. The master, he explained, was thoroughly competent. He thought McCord probably deemed it inadvisable to come in over land because it might be dangerous to fly over tall structures such as the Empire State Building in New York City in view of conditions then prevailing. He was not criticizing anyone's judgment, he asserted.

5. There was no panic, no confusion or any loss of discipline at any time during the ill-fated voyage.
Wiley praised Commander McCord highly.

LEWIS C. WETTLING DIES SUDDENLY HERE

Well-Known Jeweler of Mill Street Ill But Few Days

HEADED BUSINESS MEN

A well-known and highly-respected business man, Lewis C. Wetling, died suddenly late yesterday afternoon of angina pectoris.

The deceased had been ill for the past several days, and death occurred at 4:30 o'clock at his residence, 312 Mill street.

Mr. Wetling was a native of Ebensburg, Pa., where he was born 71 years ago. He was educated in the schools of Indiana, Pa., and had made Bristol his home for many years. He was employed by the late B. C. Foster, jeweler, for a number of years, and then later entered business for himself at Newtown and also at Newark, N. J. He was located at Newtown for 34 years, previous to going to Newark.
He came from Newark to Bristol seven years ago and established his jewelry business on Mill street.

Mr. Wetling held a high place in the respect and esteem of residents here, and with all with whom he became acquainted. He was a member of the masonic lodge at Newtown, member of the Consistory, president of Mill Street Business Men's Association, and member and secretary of the Vestry of St. James's Episcopal Church, here; as well as a member of Hermi-on Lodge, K. of P., of Bristol.

Mr. Wetling is survived by his wife, Adella; one son, Lewis E., Margate City, N. J.; two daughters, Mrs. James L. Jack, Indiana, Pa.; Mrs. Gardner
M. Cobb, Detroit.

Mr. Wetling took an active interest in the affairs of the community and was an active worker in the interests of the Mill Street Business Men's Association. He, for the past several years, had thrown the switch which lighted the thoroughfare for the Christmas season.

Relatives and friends, and members of organizations with which the deceased was affiliated, are invited to attend the funeral services at St.
James's P. E. Church, Thursday, at 11 a. m. Burial will be made in Bristol Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home of the H. S. Rue Estate, 314 Cedar street, Wednesday evening.

TO ASK STATE POLICE AID TO RID FIRE MENACE

Superintendent of Public Safety So Instructed by Council

REPORT 14 BUILDINGS

Either Fire Menace of Unsafe Rendezvous For Children

Borough council last night instructed Superintendent of Public Safety James L. McGee to solicit the aid of State Fire Marshal's office in the elimination of buildings considered a fire hazard here.

Superintendent McGee informed council there are 14 buildings in the borough which he considers either as a fire hazard or unsafe as a rendezvous for children. Some of these buildings, it was stated, are without windows or doors and have become playhouses for children, who due to a lack of stairways in the structures, leap from floor to floor.

Council has been considering menaces of this nature for some time and requested the borough solicitor to prepare an ordinance, giving the department of public safety some authority to rid the community of these structures. Last night the borough solicitor replied, stating that such authority was vested in the state fire marshal's office, which is a division of the state police. Under the state law each fire chief is a deputy fire marshal. Mr.
McGee, being fire chief, as well as superintendent of public safety, is also a deputy fire marshal, and will call in the state fire marshal's office for authority to remove the menaces complained of.

The authority is given the state fire marshal's office under the act of April 27, 1927. The buildings considered a menace are reported. An investigation is made by State Police and due notice given the property owner. The owner then has a specified time in which to comply or file protest, and the case is given further consideration before final action.

The Health, Sanitation and Poor Committee, through its chairman, Richard Winslow, reported that only one bid was received for collection of dry garbage. This bid was from the present collector, Teofil Ostrowsky, and was for $1800 a year, which is $60 less than last year.

Upon the recommendation of the committee the contract was awarded.
Plumber's bond of Vincenzo DeCa-tani was referred to borough engineer for investigation, as none of the members of council knew the applicant.

COUNTY FIREMEN TO ASSEMBLE IN DUBLIN

Adjourned Meeting to Convene, Saturday,
April 22nd

ARRANGING DETAILS

DUBLIN, Apr. 11.—Final arrangements were made at the meeting of the Dublin Volunteer Fire Company at its headquarters here to entertain the Bucks County Firemen's Association at an adjourned meeting on Saturday, April 22. Owing to the fact that the program at Richboro at the time of the last meeting of the county organization was very much crowded it was impossible to complete all business and as a result it was decided to hold an adjourned meeting and Dublin was selected as the meeting place.

During this meeting it is expected that preparations for the annual picnic of the Bucks County Firemen's Association to take place in June will be completed.

Chief Lloyd Y. Crouthamel reported to the 34 members in attendance that the firemen had responded to one call during the past month and that was to the property of Anthony Wagner, where a chimney and the roof of the house had become ignited.

Report was made by the play committee that the last of the series of Pennsylvania Dutch plays will be presented in the fire house tomorrow evening.

Announcement was made that the ladies' auxiliary of the local company had re-organized with a membership of 46. The local auxiliary is making preparations to entertain the auxiliary of the county organization on April 22.

Members of the carnival committee reported progress on the giant carnival to be staged on May 27, when a free entertainment of an unusual character will be a feature. The program will include numbers by radio stars, amateur talent procured throughout various sections of the county and motion pictures.

Goering, Premier of Prussia. News of his appointment was telegraphed to Goering in Rome.

The appointment gives him four important posts in the government of Germany. He is minister without portfolio in the Hitler cabinet, Reich Commissioner of Aviation, and Minister of the Interior of Prussia.

Captain Goering will name his cabi-

JAPANESE CAPTURE LENG PASS

Tokyo, Apr. 11.—Staging a widespread attack along the Great Wall of China, the Tokodo contingent of the Japanese army today captured Leng Pass, focal point of recent hostilities.

Chinese troops were reported retreating along the entire battle front.
The war office announced the drive was intended to clear Chinese troops out of Leng Pass, fifty miles west of Shanghai.

Japanese forces were reported attacking the small Chinese units at Shuanglingchuan, Antien, and Falingia and Shougitien. It was announced these movements were aimed at eliminating "frequent attempts of the enemy to cut off communication and supply lines."

The war ministry stoutly maintained that reports that the Japanese drive was aimed at invasion on the Peiping-Tientsin area were "exaggerated," but the general opinion among foreign observers supported by reliable advices was that the ministry is striving to prevent what it considers "premature announcement of its plans."

"Humanity," Comedy, News Furnish Program at Grand

With a cast including Boots Mallory, Wampus Baby Star, Ralph Morgan, Alexander Kirkland, Irene Ware, Noel Madison, Christian Rub and Perke Boros, "Humanity" came to the Grand Theatre last night for an engagement of two days.

The story embraces the elements of romance and sacrifice as it depicts the adventures of a young doctor who is blind to the ideals of his physician father and who follows the lure of money because of his infatuation of a luxury-loving woman.

Kirkland and Miss Mallory divide the romantic interest and Morgan enacts the role of the father who, with the girl, attempts to guide aright the faltering footsteps of the boy.

Taxi boys will be shown in a comedy "What Price Taxi?" and there will be a cartoon comedy, "Funny Faces,"

2 COWS, HEIFER, DOG, FARM MACHINERY, HAY AND WAGON, TOTALLY DESTROYED ON WARNER FARM EARLY TODAY

Firemen From Five Communities Fought Flames — Five Horses Rescued and Turned Into Open Fields — Two of The Horses Were Rescued From Barn Fire in October

Two cows, heifer, police dog, farming machinery, five tons of hay, harness, farm wagon and numerous other equipment found on a farm, along with a large barn, cow barn, hay shed and silo were destroyed by fire early this morning on the farm formerly owned by the Burton brothers, between Tully-town and Edgely. The property is now owned by the Warner Sand Company.

The loss is estimated at about $5,000 on the buildings, and $2,000 on contents.

It is believed the blaze was the work of an incendiary.

Five horses were gotten out of the burning structure.
Two of these horses are owned by Morris White, whose barn was destroyed in October. Mr. White's place is a short distance away on the opposite side of the road. The other three horses belong to Essek Lovett, tenant on the Warner place.
Mr. Lovett said this morning that he had lost practically everything he had.

SECRETARY WOODIN CONFERS WITH COMMITTEE

In Effort to Compromise Differences Over Latest Banking Bill

OPPOSES SOME CLAUSES

By William K. Hutchinson
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Apr. 11.—(INS)— Secretary of the Treasury Woodin conferred with the Senate banking and currency committee today in an effort to compromise all differences over the administration's latest banking reform bill.

The secretary was reported as opposing certain features of the bill, drafted recently by a sub-committee which included Senator Glass (D) of Virginia, and Senator McAdoo (D) of California, two former secretaries of the treasury. Beside his opposition, the new bill was assailed by House and Senate leaders for failure to carry any protection of deposits in state banks.

The bill, as now drawn, would:

1. Create a Federal liquidating corporation to help liquidate closed banks.
2. Establish an insurance fund in the corporation to serve as a guarantee of deposits in all member banks of the Federal Reserve system.
3. Compel all national and Federal

FOURTH WARD BOYS

Fourth ward boys' baseball team members are asked to report at the Pine street field today at four o'clock.
Track team members are requested to be at Corson street between four and six, today.

The fire this morning mystifies the authorities, who were of the opinion they had the alleged firebug under arrest. A man giving the name of John Jankoski, 48, no home, has been in custody of State Police at Morrisville since Saturday, when he was arrested on the Dellington road. State Police and County Fire Marshal William L.
Stackhouse have been questioning Jan-koski and have visited with him the scenes of recent fires.

While thought to be of unsound mind, yet Jankoski is said to have given the authorities much information which led them to think he has in some way been connected with the fires. He has made no direct confession and the police still refuse to say he is the man upon whom blame for the fires of suspicious origin can be placed.

The blaze this morning was discovered at about 12:30 by John Updyke, stepson of Mr. Lovett. Updyke saw the blaze reflected in a window and aroused his wife and stepfather. The men succeeded in getting the five horses out of the barn. The horses were in the end of the barn nearest the house. The blaze appeared, Mr.
Lovett states, to have started in the end of the barn farthest away from the house where the cows were stabled.

About 11 o'clock last night by Mr. Up-dyke. Everything about the barn at that time appeared to be okay.

The main barn measured 30 by 100, while the cow barn was 24 by 32, and the hay shed 15 by 32. They were all attached. A low wind fanned the flames in the direction of the house, but firemen from Tullytown, Haddley Manor, Morrisville, and the Bristol volunteers prevented the flames from spreading to other structures.

This is the 52nd barn fire of suspicious origin since January 1st, in Bucks County. Two dwellings have also been levelled.

Officers Installed For Lily Rebekah Lodge, 366

New officers of Lily Rebekah Lodge, No. 366, were installed in their respective stations, last evening, by district deputy president, Edith Higgins, and her staff from Vashti Lodge, No. 190, of New Hope.

The officers installed are: Florena DeVoe, noble grand; Isabell Jackson, v. g.; Marie Gratz, chaplain; Elizabeth Hinman, warden; Elsie Smith, conductor; Anna Robinson, r. s. to n. g.; Violet Hilgendorf, l. s. to n. g.; Henrietta Ashby, pianist; Mary Heaton, r. s. to v. g.; Bella West, l. s. to v. g.; Ethel Barr, inside guardian; Emil White, outside guardian; Gertrude Gould, treasurer; Margaret Ritter, financial secretary; Lillian Dyer, recording secretary; Ethel Barr, trustee.

The retiring noble grand, Emma Hermann, was escorted to the past noble grand's chair and presented with her jewel by the district deputy president. She was also given a beautiful bouquet of pink roses from the lodge, as a token of appreciation for her untiring services. Numerous gifts were given to the past noble grand, and she presented each officer with a gift of remembrance.

The incoming noble grand was presented with a gorgeous basket of flowers, a gift from her parents.
Visitors were present from Marian Rebekah Lodge, Burlington, N. J., and from Vashti Lodge, New Hope, who congratulated members of the local lodge on their advancement.

After the meeting the gathering returned to the banquet room where a repast was served. Decorations were cut flowers and plants in the lodge colors, pink and green. Favors were small corsages of sweet peas and ferns, gifts from the new noble grand.

PUBLIC OPINION

Public opinion makes virtue. To say that men are righteous because they fear God is to express but half of the truth; they fear God because public opinion of their time and place insists that they fear God. Public opinion trains man's conscience and provides his standards, and he is a rare man who is more respectable than the standards of his environment.

When the Mississippi and the Ohio were the frontier of America, muscle was the gauge of manhood and of excellence. If a man stood high in the community, he was a wonder in a rough-and-tumble fight. Incidentally, he used his teeth and hobnails. In that day men drank heavily; joyously engaged in brawls; boasted of their toughness; were proud of their freedom from the decencies.

Times changed. Frontiers vanished. The roughnecks were hanged. Public opinion established industry, thrift and honesty as standards. Money and learning became of more worth than muscle. Public opinion looked sternly on the new generation and said: "Be decent; no rough stuff will be tolerated."

In this day and age no man can long defy public opinion. It becomes more difficult daily for the individual to "get away with murder." Once public opinion is crystallized against a person or thing, something happens. And it should be said, in conclusion, that public opinion is not always fair and just.

A SELF-TEST

A man who has passed on—Elbert Hubbard—gave the following self-test, to be taken on the turn of the year, and it would seem to be applicable to every serious-minded person just now.

Take an inventory of your spiritual assets. How do you stand on these? Mark yourself 10 where you are perfect; then, the rest mark down to about where you are, and see how it looks.

Faith, system, service, loyalty, purpose, kindness, economy, industry, courtesy, initiative, intention, frankness, evolution, education, fellowship, patience, courage, responsiveness, tenacity, ambition, harmony, prudence, integrity, obedience, thoroughness, mutuality, mastery, fraternity, endurance, enthusiasm, equanimity, good cheer, reciprocity, cleanliness, helpfulness, punctuality, self-control, orderliness, co-operation, self-reliance, trustfulness, self-sacrifice, perseverance, individuality, and concentration.

Never mind anything more—line these up, put down your quotations, draw a line, foot-up, and divide by the number of factors, 47, and see what your average is. Then you will perhaps know where you stand for the new year.

If it comes out right, you can agree with Robert Louis Stevenson, who said: "I know what pleasure is, for I have done good work."

A man who does good work does not have to talk, apologize and explain—his work speaks.

Hitler's intolerance has been exaggerated. He is tolerant of everything done in the name of Nazism.

Many stores have tried to do business without newspaper advertising. There are many store rooms for rent.

For Comfort—your car has to be big enough so you can be comfortable in it. Pontiac has a wheelbase of 115 inches.

For Performance—you have to have a big, powerful engine. Pontiac's engine is a big 77-horsepower Straight Eight that gives you 78 real miles per hour.

For Economy—you have to have engine efficiency. Letters from people who have taken Pontiac's Economy Demonstration say that it gives 15 miles or more to the gallon of gasoline.

For Appearance—well, just look at it and you'll see what Pontiac is. Pontiac shows the effects of a new finesse in styling that is making it one of the most talked about cars of the year.

For Safety—you have to have scientifically designed and ruggedly built bodies and chassis. Pontiac's 4-door Sedan weighs 3265 pounds at the curb, and all closed cars have bodies by Fisher. Fisher No Draft Ventilation is a special feature in all closed models.

Only if you have Pontiac's size and weight and engine in your car, can you expect to really get their benefits out of the car. Pontiac is a typical General Motors Value—an outstanding car in the low price field—and a good car to buy.

"MARY FAITH"

by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Faith, young and comely orphan, is secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy young business man. She informs Mark that she is leaving her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, handsome, young lawyer, to whom she has been engaged for some time. Invited to Kim's house for dinner, Mary Faith is greeted coldly by his mother. Later, Kim startles Mary Faith by breaking his engagement and asking for the ring. The next morning, Mary Faith informs her co-workers that she is not to be married. She asks them to take back their presents. After working late, Mark Nesbit takes Mary Faith to dinner and home to her boarding house in his car. Slowly Mary Faith learns to live her life without Kim. When Mark Nesbit injures his ankle, Mary Faith is driven to his country home to take dictation.

CHAPTER IX

The car stopped and Loftus opened the door for Mary Faith with a flourish.

"Here we is, Miss Fenton!" he said. "I got you here jus' in time for lunch."

Within, the Nesbit house fulfilled its outward promise of warmth and comfort and beauty. A wood fire, crumbling to pink embers, glowed in the fireplace in the long, white-paneled hall. On the mantelshelf stood a jar of roses that made Mary Faith think of Halmnorth Park in June, and the carpet under her feet was springy and soft like gray-green moss.

"Mr. Mark says for Miss Fenton to come right upstairs to his study, please, ma'am," said the colored houseman who had opened the door to her and taken her typewriter from Loftus.

He led the way up the stairs and Mary Faith followed him.

Mark Nesbit was waiting for Mary Faith in his study at the head of the stairs. He was stretched out in a long chair before the fireplace. A steamer rug was tucked around him and he had a magazine in his hands. But he was not reading it. His eyes were fixed on the doorway when Mary Faith stepped into it. He looked somehow as if he had been lying just that way, watching for her, for a long time.

"Well, here you are," He grinned at her in welcome. "You were such a long time on the way that I was beginning to think you'd gone into the ditch the way I did."

He seemed to be very cheerful about his accident. And it struck Mary Faith that he looked younger than usual with his dark hair rumpled and his soft collar turned in at the neck above his house coat. "Loftus had to drive very slowly," she said. "The roads are like glass and the wind tried to blow us into the ditch once or twice."

It was hard to believe, in the pleasant warmth of this quiet room, that a wild December gale was blowing outside and that there was ice on the roads and snow in the fence corners.

Azaleas in Dutch pots were in bloom on the window sills and there was a bowl of roses on the white-covered table that was drawn up beside Mark Nesbit's chair.

"We're going to have lunch up here on this table, Mary Faith," he said. And then, without taking his eyes from her face, he spoke to the houseman: "Will you please tell Mrs. Nesbit that Miss Fenton is here, Silas? You can bring lunch up as soon as it's ready."

He took the letters Mary Faith had brought to him and tucked them into a pocket of his long wicker chair.

"Those can wait until we've had something to eat. Move that chair closer to the fire, Mary Faith. I'm sorry I can't do it for you but I can't move out of this chair. It took Loftus and Silas to get me into it."

"You and I have known each other for four years," he said.

"Why don't you send in to town for a wheel chair? Then you wouldn't have to stay in this one room for the next week or two?"

Mark Nesbit was waiting for Mary Faith. "Not that it's an unpleasant place to be. . . . It's a lovely, comfortable room. It's like a stage-setting."

From the depths of a Sleepy Hollow chair beside the grate she looked round at his study. It was a typical man's room—brown leather couch, flat-topped desk, book shelves, fishing rods and golf sticks in a corner, photographs of mountain scenery on the walls. But it had a cozy look, as if a woman's hand had passed over it, leaving the flowers on the window sill and the brown velvet cushions on the couch.

The door opened and Mr. Nesbit's mother came in.

Mary Faith had seen her a dozen times before during the years she had worked at Nesbit's. She was a tall pretty woman with white hair that she wore in a pompadour, bright brown eyes and naturally pink cheeks. Mary Faith had always liked her looks, her soft southern voice and the air of dash with which she wore her plain well-made clothes.

She had on a white linen dress now, and she was stripping a pair of white cotton gardening gloves from her hands.

"How do you do, Miss Fenton? I was listening for you," she shook hands with Mary Faith. "But I didn't hear you come in. I was in my little greenhouse at the very back of the house, taking care of my poor roses. The wind blew a pane of glass out during the night and this morning I found five of my bushes frozen."

"Have you ever tried covering them with five or six thicknesses of newspaper on cold nights?" asked Mary Faith shyly. "My mother used to have some plants in our dining room when I was a little girl. And I remember that on winter nights she used to let me help her wrap them up in newspaper."

The door of the room opened once more, and Silas came in on his felt shoes, carrying a large silver tray. The meal he set out upon the table was simple and very good.

Cold sliced chicken and fresh Parker House rolls with butter melting in them, orange salad and coffee in a fat silver pot.

"Newspaper! That's an idea," Mrs. Nesbit murmured as she poured out the coffee. "I wonder if brown wrapping paper wouldn't be better. It's thicker—and it seems to me we have a big roll of it down stairs."

Mary Faith nodded her head. "I suppose it would be better. My mother used newspaper probably because we always had such stacks of it in the house. . . . My father was a newspaperman and he never came home from the office without bringing a lot of papers with him. . . . I was brought up on the Kansas City Star and the Los Angeles Herald and the Atlanta Constitution. Sometimes he even brought home the London Times."

Over the table she found herself talking to Mark Nesbit's mother as she never had been able to talk to Kim's mother. Telling her all sorts of things that she had half-forgotten. Things about her brilliant, improvident father who had died when she was sixteen, leaving her mother and herself two thousand dollars and a library of six hundred books.

When lunch was over Mrs. Nesbit went away. Silas cleared the table and Mary Faith got out her shorthand pad and her pencils.

She sat down, her hands clasped at the edge of the table in front of her, and waited for Mark Nesbit to begin dictating to her. He had taken his letters out of the pocket of his chair and he was reading them as he filled his pipe.

Suddenly he glanced up from them and his eyes fixed themselves on Mary Faith's eyes with that intent look of his.

"You and I have known each other for four years," he said as if the thought had just struck him. "But until today I didn't know that your father had been a newspaperman. I didn't know anything really about you and your life outside my office. It's a funny thing when you stop to think about it, isn't it?"

SUGGESTIONS GIVEN FOR BRIGHTENING OF HOME WITH FLOWERS

As we enter into the spring season, we are reminded of many things, among them the urge to brighten up the home. And one way of doing this is to place a row of blooming plants on the window ledge. Or the dining room will offer a pretty setting for them.

The wax begonia and the primula onconica are especially well suited for this purpose, as they are free bloomers and very hardy. If, however, your room does not take or need the color, have a uniform row of rather tall Sansevieria plants in chalk white flower pots. Set in a stiff, straight row, they add an air of distinction to any room and also seem to thrive on neglect. If you use the primula, be sure to pinch off the pods after the blossoms have dropped, as this helps the new buds to develop.

Of course, if you are dressing the house for a special affair, one of the most pleasing of all effects is obtained by having gobos of white hyacinths in full bloom in white or foliage-green pots. They are absolutely stunning when fully developed as they are so crisp and chubby.

This is the season to renovate your indoor plants. Discard the straggly ones and add a strand of fresh Philodendron or ivy to the half empty pot. Get a quart of good black soil from your florist and add some to each pot of plants. It not only fills up the cavities left from watering, but it acts as fresh food as well. Most house plants require potting but once a year, and that preferably after you are sure the winter season is over.

FEMININE LINES NOW FEATURING NEW SUITS FOR THE SPRINGTIME

By Alice Langelier
(L. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
PARIS—(INS)—Spring suits are sans fur but not sans chic. Tempting tailormades are appearing in smartest cut and new fabrics, following the very feminine trend apparent in all women's wear on this side of the water this season.

Reveillon is making one in reddish-brown tweed with brown and beige check bib trim in front closed by three brooch-like clips.

Another in two shades of grey has the lapels and sleeves trimmed of the darker tone from which the skirt is cut.

BASEBALL NOT COMING BACK; IT IS BACK

By Davis J. Walsh
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, Apr. 11.—(INS)—Baseball is not coming back. It is back, Mr. William Harridge and Mr. John A. Heydler, respective presidents of the American and National Leagues, said insistently and in chorus today in ante-mortem statements on the eve of the 1933 pennant races.

Nevertheless and sharply in contrast to this view, Mr. Heydler has broken all precedents this morning by authorizing what he terms a "personal appeal" for sustained effort on the ball field during a season which, he says, baseball's popularity will be "put to the acid test." The message was addressed "to the players of the National League" and presumably was delivered to them in the mails today.

"Never before have we faced more stringent money conditions," it says in one passage, darkly.

While tacitly referred to as an appeal, the document is almost a peremptory demand that players be (a) absent from opposing dugouts and from opposing players on the field; (b) absence from opposing club houses off the field; (c) vigorous in running out all hits no matter what the score; (d) enthusiastic and cheerful; (e) alert and interested.

In other words, the young men are ordered to be happy until it hurts. However, John calls it an appeal and, since we all make mistakes, this may be mine.

Meantime, his official prediction is for the "most prosperous year in baseball since the depression started," because, as I got it, business is picking up and ball players are bearing down, simultaneously and in the order named. He also spoke approvingly of beer.

Not to be outdone, Mr. Harridge spoke approvingly of beer. Now that we have it, this is no longer considered unfashionable. Human nature is notoriously perverse and diverse, so before that it wasn't righteous to do anything but drink it.

"We'll have a balanced race in the American League for the first time in years," Mr. Harridge went on. "We'll also have better business, for every indication points to an impending return to prosperity."

Off-season trades, he said, had brought about a balance of power that insured an increase in competition and, therefore, in fan-interest.

"The White Sox are better with Simmons, Haas and Dykes," he said. "That can't miss. The Browns have improved themselves and are imbued with a new hustling spirit. We have very strong clubs in Philadelphia, Washington and Cleveland and a strong club in Detroit."

"The Yankees won impressively in 1932 and cleaned up the World Series in four straight games, yet no champion of the last ten years faced a harder time than they will in trying to repeat. Even the Red Sox have excellent pitching and more than average hitting."

The Pirates, according to Mr. Heydler, will do well at the pay window because they're a hot pennant choice in what promises to be a none too regular race. The Cubs, it seems, can't go wrong, particularly with Babe Herman. With the Cardinals, it will be great pitching and the return of Hornsby. With the Giants "new faces, new names."

He described interest in Philadelphia, Boston and Cincinnati as being "hot." As for Brooklyn—"A crowd of 22,000 at a mere exhibition is answer enough," he said, almost patronizingly.

In other words, outside of the fact that there is very little money and baseball is facing the "acid test" that may "directly affect the livelihood of the players," everything is just splendid.

Secretary Woodin Confers With Committee

reserve banks to divorce their affiliations within five years.

4. Divorce investment banking from commercial banking, by prohibiting national and member banks from engaging in the flotation or underwriting of security issues.

5. Create an open market committee to regulate investment purchases of securities by member banks.

6. Authorize the Federal Reserve Board to regulate the amount of outstanding loans, secured by collateral, to be held by any member bank.

7. Provide for 15-day loans by Federal Reserve banks to member banks on promissory notes, secured by "bonds, notes, certificates of indebtedness or treasury bills," or eligible paper.

8. Provide for ninety-day loans on "notes, drafts, bills of exchange or bankers' acceptances," subject to rediscount in the Federal Reserve system.

The bill also carried new regulations governing directors of banks. First, the number of directors would be limited to "not less than five nor more than twenty-five." Each director would have to own $2,000 worth of stock in the bank.

REMEMBER!

(By Rupert P. Werling)

When you were making big money, And had no trouble or care, Church was the last place you thought of.

You seldom, if ever, went there. But now the Depression has hurt you, You've turned, and prayed to your God; If you were He in heaven above, Wouldn't this strike you as being odd?

So when your prayers aren't answered, And your hopes seem very slim, Remember how long He waited 'Til you came back to Him.

Thousands of Housewives Were Interviewed

Thousands of housewives in all parts of the country were interviewed by emissaries of Frigidaire Corporation, subsidiary of General Motors, before the new super-Frigidaire even was planned on paper, according to C. W. Winter, local dealer.

The result, he said, is the finest electric refrigerator ever built and one that meets every requirement of the broad statement, "the woman's viewpoint."

"The thousands of suggestions and answers received by our inquiring reporters were assembled into a composite group of four words," he said, "beauty, convenience, quality and economy."

"Of the four definite requirements, convenience was foremost in the planning of our engineers who set about to design a new Frigidaire that would offer housewives everything they wish in the way of kitchen efficiency and economy."

"Shelves are adjustable to meet the particular requirements of a user. There is an automatic defroster and automatic ice tray release. Two hydrators in larger models—twice the normal capacity—provide an extraordinary storage space for vegetables and fruits. Unusually rapid freezing and more ice cube trays than ever before insure an adequate supply of ice for all domestic needs. The automatic defroster switches on when defrosting is completed, thus eliminating all cause for worry and any chance that food stored in the unit will not be properly refrigerated. Interior lighting is a feature."

"The freezer has been placed in the center so that space on either side is available for food storage. Chromium plate has been used in the freezers to give a maximum of conductivity. This single feature decidedly increases the refrigeration capacity and thereby lowers the cost of operation."

"The lifetime porcelain exterior is matched by the acid and stain resisting porcelain interior. Cabinets were designed by foremost furniture stylists and the famous cold control has been placed on an attractive instrument panel with the automatic defroster and main circuit switches. "The super-series Frigidaire has been compared to the finest scientific instruments used because of the precision with which it is built. The largest one-story factory building in the world was literally made over and new machinery installed a few months ago to make such high standards of manufacture possible."

In addition to the super-series of models, Frigidaire also has units that deliver here for as little as $96, plus small freight charges, and which use no more current than an ordinary electric light bulb, according to Mr. Winter.

These standard models are the lowest priced quality refrigerators ever built and provide adequate refrigeration at the lowest operating costs in refrigeration history.

Tris and the "Blues"

By BURNLEY

THE "Gray Eagle" is back! Tris Speaker, who in his prime was perhaps the greatest centerfielder that ever roamed the diamond pastures, returns to baseball this season after an absence of four years. The silver-haired "Spike" is now the manager of the Kansas City Blues of the American Association, and baseball fans all over the country will be rooting for Tris to make good in his new post.

Nor is there any reason why Speaker shouldn't make a big hit at Kansas City. It is a very strong baseball town, and if the old Gray Eagle can give those Missouri fans a winner, nothing will be too good for him.

Certainly if a manager endowed with baseball brains, a magnetic personality and a natural talent for leadership can produce a winning ball club, Kansas City is sure to have a winner this year, for Speaker has all those qualities to a marked degree. He piloted the Cleveland Indians to the only pennant they have ever captured in the entire history of the team, and it has always been a mystery to me why the baseball moguls let such a capable and colorful leader as Tris drop out of the big league picture. The Kansas City team will present some colorful aspects in the way of comic relief, what with Joe E. Brown, the movie comedian, who is one of the new owners, and "Duster" Mails, one of baseball's most eccentric characters, who will play with the Blues this season.

Mails, who still calls himself "The Great" Mails, is an old sidekick of Speaker's from back in Tris' Kansas City days. The colorful "Duster," it will be remembered, helped pitch the Indians into the pennant in that memorable 1920 flag chase. Those were the days, hey, Tris!

Although the chesty Mr. Mails is now fat and forty, he is still a pretty good twirler, and, besides being a swell gate attraction because of his colorful antics on the ball field, he may prove to be a good investment from the pitching angle alone. When the goofy Duster gets out there on the pitching mound, he's crazy like a fox!

Speaker ought to let Joe E. Brown play second base when the Great Mails pitches. Joe really used to play that bag in the minors back in the good old days, or at any rate, so he says. Jo-Jo also says he has it on most of the boys because he can hold six baseballs in his mouth, but we'll let that pass.

Anyway, what Speaker needs for his infield is some guys who can hold the ball in their hands. Maybe Tris ought to put Joe in the outfield so he can catch flies in his mouth.

"Oakleys" for "First Family"

No matter what the state of the exchequer during the next year, President and Mrs. Roosevelt are at least sure of being able to see the ball games. Here are Clark C. Griffith (left), president of the Washington Senators, and John Heydler, head of the National League, as they arrived at the White House to present American and National League passes to the "First Family."
